All the children of Richard PERRIN lived in this house next to the bridge in Aylesford in the early 1840's. One side of the house was used as a shop and the other was the living area. George PERRIN was the head of the family. He married Harriet BOOTH and they had two surviving children.

1) Harriet PERRIN born 1833 married her father's apprentice Richard DYKE of Maidstone. They moved to Chart and then to London where Richard DYKE became a sculptor. They lived at Highgate Road, London, for over forty years.

2) George PERRIN junior born 1831 was trained at Aylesford School, shown above.

He then moved to Laughton, Sussex, where he was the schoolmaster from 1852 until 1872. He married Harriet GOAD and had four sons at Laughton before they all moved to London in 1872.

The picture on the left shows George PERRIN's house at Laughton where his four sons were born.

Details of the four sons of George PERRIN, the schoolmaster, are given below;

1) George Henry PERRIN (1859-1941) born at Laughton became a coffee house manager and ran his own business at 92 Cowcross Street, London, from 1919 until 1941. He lived in Hackney, Walthamstow, West Ham, and Ilford.

George Henry's children were;

2) Charles William PERRIN born at Laughton in 1861 became a printer's cutter.

His children were;

Charles PERRIN in 1888

Ethel PERRIN in 1890.

Lily PERRIN in 1896

Violet May PERRIN in 1899.

They lived at Hackney and Walthamstow.

3) Alfred Richard PERRIN born at Laughton in 1872 became a warehouseman.

His children were;

Alfred Charles PERRIN in 1900.

They lived in Camberwell, Southwark.

4) John Thomas PERRIN (1868-1921) joined the army in 1890. He served in Singapore, India, and South Africa. He left the army after the Boer War.

In London he lived at Newington and worked for Crescens Robinson & Co Ltd from 1905 to 1914. The portrait was taken about 1910 while he was working there.

In 1914 he discovered he had tuberculosis and had to leave Crescens Robinson. He was reduced to working as a hall porter at the Borough Polytechnic. In the photograph on the right, he is at the far left of the picture obviously not used to his new position. The photograph was taken on the roof of the Borough Polytechnic.

When a place as supervisor became available in 1918 John PERRIN was given the job and a free house in the grounds of the Polytechnic. On the left, John PERRIN is now, 1919, in the centre of the picture next to Frederick HEATH. The small man is Frederick HEATH, secretary to the governors of the Borough Polytechnic.
